

General Mental Health

Did you know that one in five young people will experience a significant mental health problem during their years in school?

Without help, these problems can lead to bigger problems: poor school performance, conflicts with friends and families, and more serious mental health disorders such as depression, eating disorders, or substance abuse problems.

Below is some general information and other resources to help you, or someone you may know, that is experiencing problems:

What are some "Warning Signs?"

Someone who is currently going through a mental health problem may be . . .

Troubled by feeling:

- really sad and hopeless without good reason, and the feelings don't go away;
- extremely fearful – has unexplained fears or more fears than most children;
- angry most of the time, overreacts to things;
- anxious or worried a lot more than other kids your own age.

Limited by:

- poor concentration;
- difficulty making decisions, sitting still or focusing;
- need to perform certain routines dozens of times a day;
- regular nightmares.

Experiencing big changes:

- does much worse in school;
- loses interest in things usually enjoyed;
- avoids friends and family;
- talks about suicide;
- hears voices that cannot be explained;
- has changes in sleeping or eating patterns.

Behaving in ways that cause problems:

- uses alcohol or other drugs;
- does things that can be life threatening;
- hurts other people;
- destroys property or breaks the law.

At school, Student Services staff such as guidance counselors, school psychologists, and school social workers are trained to provide mental health intervention services and can help in finding appropriate resources outside of school.

A variety of mental health treatment services are available within the community:
